I read this book countless times between the ages of 16 and 20 and to date it remains my all time favourite book by an African author. As a huge supporter of all forms of feminist movements, I loved the fact that most of the story lines covered over the 4 generations are led by very strong female characters; all the way from the headstrong Akoko in the 1800's to Awiti and her children (Vera ...

However, 'The Source' is a weak and poorly executed effort. Although there is a promising plotline, Cordy doesn't really fulfil its full potential. Time and again, huge leaps are take in the plot action. Based on his previous novels, you would have expected Cordy to have spent time and effort in developing the story more fully and descriptively
