Woodrow Wilson And Colonel House

Edward Mandell House was an American diplomat, and an advisor to President Woodrow Wilson. He was known by the nickname Colonel House, although he had performed no military service. He was a highly influential back-stage politician in Texas before becoming a key supporter of the presidential bid of Wilson in 1912. Having a self-effacing manner, he did not hold office but was an "executive agent", Wilson's chief advisor on European politics and diplomacy during World War I and at the Paris Peace

Woodrow Wilson and Colonel House, : A personality study ...

A very good political analysis of Woodrow Wilson and the friendship with Colonel House. The emphasis is on World War I and the failure to reach agreement on the League of Nations which consumes about half the book. The relationship between the two is indeed bizarre - both individuals are in need of psychiatric help.
